Our City Comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Glendale's Growth Makes Rapid Changes in Civic Structure

THE problems of a city the size of Glendale are numerous, especially when the growth is phenomenal.

Right now Glendale is going through a sort of reconstruction period. This reconstruction applies to both business and civic matters.

In a business way, it is down to a survival of the fittest. In a civic way, it is different and all matters which will affect the city's future should be carefully considered before definite action is taken.

The most important of all our problems is the matter of sewers. At the present time it looks as if this was to be solved in a satisfactory manner to all concerned.

* * *

LOWER fares to Los Angeles is another matter of the utmost importance. This matter will probably come up before the railroad commission in the near future. The answer the railroad commission makes depends entirely upon the case we submit and in consequence this matter should be given a great deal of study. If we can convince them that our rates are higher than justified we have won our case, for the Pacific Electric officers have intimated that they would not contest a lowering of the Glendale fares if it did not affect the entire system.

The next of importance is the school problem. At the present time a great many of the foremost educators are recommending for the public schools the system known as the 6-3-3, which means that the course of study is divided into three divisions—6 years of grades, 3 years of junior high and 3 years of senior high school.

There never was a time so psychological as the present to inaugurate this plan in Glendale. When the new high school buildings are completed the old buildings become available for some other use. Considerable agitation has been going on for some time on the advisability and desirability of having a civic center for Glendale and a movement is on foot at the present time to get the city to purchase the old high plant for use as a civic center.

* * *

WE know of nothing that would prove more beneficial to Glendale than a civic center. The location of the old high school plant would be ideal for a civic center, and as the grounds belong to the people, it is for them to say.

We would suggest that the best interests of the city would be served if the junior high school problem be considered and decided in some manner before the sale of the high school plant as a civic center is made.

The problems are closely allied and can be solved better at the same time than apart.

* * *

GLENDALE has an opportunity right now of solving several perplexing questions at the same time. A procuring of a civic center to house the city's administration forces and provide recreation facilities and comfort stations. The establishment of a system in our schools which is recognized as near the ideal. The providing of school facilities which will without doubt serve for several years.

These are all problems that mean much to the Glendale of tomorrow and community thought and action should solve them.

HIGH TRUSTEES TO CONSIDER CIVIC CENTER PLAN

Conference Is Held With Community Service Committee

At a meeting of the high school trustees held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the chief business was a conference with a committee representing Community Service, which requested the board to open negotiations with city officials, looking to the transfer to the city of the present high school plant to be used as a community center. The board agreed to take the matter under consideration but deferred action.

L. T. Rowley, attendance officer, was granted a week's leave of absence to attend a convention of social workers in the Yosemite valley.

Bids were accepted for athletic supplies, totaling $245.74.

CITY HEADS TO OPEN EXPOSITION

Executives of Los Angeles San Fernando, Santa Monica to Be Guests

NO SUNDAY SHOW

Promoter of Enterprise to Limit Activities to Sacred Concert

Mayor Cryer of Los Angeles, the mayor of San Fernando, the mayor of Santa Monica, the Santa Monica band and the members of the Credit Men's association from all parts of Southern California who will come to Glendale to convene, will be the guests of the Merchants Exposition on the opening night, May 25, according to an announcement made by Chairman McCormack of the publicity committee at the meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce Tuesday noon.

In order that these visitors may be well taken care of, Pres. Smith, upon authority of the board, selected the following to serve on the reception committee for that night: the members of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce, the heads of the standing committee of the chamber and the Glendale Credit association, the exposition committee from each organization and the members of the Glendale city council.

Mr. McCormack reported that all of the space in the large tent has been sold and the tent has been erected.

In regard to the booklet descriptive of Glendale that is to be issued by the chamber of commerce Mr. McCormack stated that not a line of copy had been received from the members of the chamber, the Glendale Realty board or many of the other organizations from which this material was to be secured. For this reason the publication of the book is being held up.

That the notices to the Glendale citizens, informing them of a more frequent collection for garbage and rubbish would be issued within a few days, was the statement made by George Karr, chairman of the civics committee. He stated, also, that the civics committee and Glendale city council are working in harmony on this and other matters, and that it has been agreed that instead of having a general cleanup week in Glendale every week would be cleanup week. The services of the rubbish collector is free to all of the residents of Glendale and they can use it to keep their lots in good condition.

A resolution from the Sawtelle chamber of commerce dealing with certain laws that are before the state legislature, was received and referred to the school committee.

One thousand extra copies of the June issue of the Arrowhead magazine, in which Glendale will be featured, were authorized by the board.

The matter of the closing of the Merchants Exposition on Sundays during the ten days it will be in progress was discussed and it developed that Mr. Leavitt, who is promot-

GEORGE J. GOULD SUCCUMBS WHILE IN FRANCE

New York Financier and Leader of Famous Family Dies in France

[By Associated Press]

MENTONE, France, May 16.—George Jay Gould, the American financier, who has been ill at Cap Martin for some time, died at 3 o'clock this morning.

The end came peacefully. Mr. Gould's wife and two children were at his bedside.

George Jay Gould, financier and railroad man, succeeded to the leadership of the famous Gould family upon the death of his father, Jay Gould, December 2, 1892.

In addition to assuming responsibility, as trustee and executor, for the $80,000,000 estate left by his father, he carried on and expanded the great railroad holdings of the latter, and within a few years, during which he applied the lessons learned from the elder Gould, he became one of America's foremost railroad financiers. The 6,000 miles of road left by Jay Gould grew to more than 20,000 miles under the management of his son, while the many investments in other huge enterprises, including the Western Union Telegraph Company, also were largely managed by the principal heir.

George Jay Gould was born in New York City February 6, 1864, the sixth in line of descent from Major Nathan Gould, or Gold, the original ancestor, who came from the south of England in 1646 and settled in Fairfield, Conn. While many of Nathan Gould's descendants attained eminence in colonial affairs and through service in the Revolutionary War, it remained for Jay Gould to become the first financier.

The Gould family fortune dates from 1860, when Jay Gould, a partner in his father's hardware store in Delaware county, New York, bought for ten cents on the dollar a controlling interest in the Rutland and Washington railroad, a little bankrupt line running between Troy, New York, and Rutland, Vt. Young Gould, in addition to selling hardware, had studied surveying in his spare time, and took an interest in railroad building as a result of these studies.

Two years after purchasing the road, Jay Gould had succeeded in

3000 SUNDAY SCHOOL FOLKS TO ASSEMBLE

38th Annual Convention to Be Held at Huntington Park

It is expected that 3000 workers will attend the 38th annual convention of the Los Angeles County Sunday School Council of Religious Education, which is to be held at Huntington Park, May 24 and 25.

The State Teachers' association of California recently sent a resolution to the state legislature, urging the approval of a bill which seeks to open the way for religion to be taught during school hours, but not in any way as part of the public school system. It is asserted by this body that the church school fails to teach sufficient religion to the changing, developing youth of the country.

Harold F. Humbert of Boston will lead the music. He was formerly instructor in dramatics and art in the Boston School of Religion for two years and will instruct in hymn interpretation and hymnology.

Forty selected leaders will have part in the program.

Thursday evening, May 24, will be adult night. Two large flags will be presented—one to the men's or mixed class having the largest per cent of its class enrollment present, and one to the women's class, awarded on a similar basis. The convention will close Friday afternoon with a great costumed cantata entitled "Ruth." This cantata will be rendered by the W. W. G. class of the Huntington Park Baptist church school.

FIVE HUNDRED ATTEND COMMUNITY SERVICE AT ITS SECOND BIG SING

Surprising Increase in Interest Is Shown by Turnout to Attend Program by the Southern California University Glee Club

LOS ANGELES SONG LEADER IS DIRECTOR

Audience Is Urged to Attend the Big Event at Hollywood Bowl on Sunday Afternoon, Inaugurating Los Angeles Music Week

Increased interest in the community sings and programs being put on by Glendale Community Service was indicated by the crowd of more than 500 people who assembled last night in the auditorium of the high school for a half hour of community singing, followed by a most interesting program of songs put on by the Glee club of the University of Southern California under the direction of Horatio Cogswell.

A. L. Baird, local music chairman of Community Service, introduced J. A. Lewis, president of the Song Leaders' Association of Los Angeles, who directed the ensemble singing of such old time favorites as "Old Folks at Home," "Peggy O'Neill," "Long, Long Trail," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and others. R. E. Tucker, secretary of Glendale Community Service, was next introduced and announced for June 7 and 8 a children's musical comedy, "In Doll Land," played by about forty Glendale children under the direction of Mrs. Nanno Woods. This entertainment will be free. He also stated that on June 9 the Long Beach Band and also Mr. Frey, a director of note, of Long Beach, will come to Glendale to take charge of the community sing and program on that night.

Mr. Tucker urged that a large delegation of Glendale residents attend the big sing in Hollywood Bowl on Sunday afternoon, May 20, at 3 o'clock, which will inaugurate the Los Angeles Music Week. A most interesting program was put on for Community Service of Glendale recently by Hollywood artists through the courtesy of Mrs. Carter.

The program put on last night by the twenty-five members of the U. S. C. Glee Club included: "The Cardinal and Gold," "The Winter Song" (Bullard), "Funiculi-Funiculla," "The Bill of Fare" (Zollner), with a restaurant stage setting; "The Hunter's Farewell" (Mendelsohn), which is the prize song for all glee club contests throughout the United States this year; "On the Road to Mandalay" (Speaks). Howard Coy, tenor soloist, was well received in his rendition of "I Will Sing Thee Songs of Araby," responding to an encore with "Pale Moon" (Logan).

Alexander Stewart, Pacific coast music organizer for National Community Service, and who conducted the Song Leaders' Institute in Glendale, complimented the people on the wonderful progress which has been made here along the lines of Community Singing. Ben F. Pearson, general manager of operation of the Southern California Edison company, and president of civil service of Los Angeles was introduced by Mr. Stewart. Mr. Pearson is chairman of the Los Angeles music week committee, and told of the program which has been worked out. He announced the big parade which is to be held Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock in Los Angeles, which will be participated in by twenty-five bands and over 150 decorated floats and automobiles. He said: "Not less than 8,000 people are participating actively in the programs next week without a cent of expense to the community."

Mr. Pearson also gave a short talk on the theme of Americanism and said, "The constructive idea of Community Service is national consciousness, the breaking down of class prejudice and class distinction. Community Service means ultimately better citizenship and better Americanism. While you seem to be engaged in Community Service of song, music and games, you are engaged in the bigger subject of the preservation of American ideals."

Harold Taft, president of the U. S. C. Glee Club, was introduced and told of the plan to send the club east this summer. The club has been giving concerts and working up a fund to insure this trip. The club will leave June 7 by way of Ogden, Denver and Salt Lake City to Chicago. The members will sing about five weeks on the road. The last concert to be given by the glee club before starting on the trip will be on June 1 at Trinity auditorium, Los Angeles, when Miss Olga Steeb will be the soloist with the club. While a silver collection was being taken for this fund Frank Lanterman of Glendale and Ed Fearney entertained with a piano duet. W. R. Macdonald brought down the house with his humorous skit of the impersonation of a country gentleman by a city boy. The program closed with the singing of "The Birth of Morn" (Leoni).

BAPTIST REVIVAL TO OPEN TONIGHT

Miss Rita Gould to Have Charge of Music of Evening

A meeting of special interest and entusiasm has been planned for the evangelistic service at the First Baptist church tonight. The meeting will open with an enthusiastic song service and selections from the choir. Miss Rita Gould, who is in charge of the music will sing. Miss Gould is in charge of one of the largest choirs in Southern California, and is herself an unusual contralto soloist. The evangelist, Miss Amy Lee Stockton, will speak tonight on the subject, "Victory Through Retreat."

A splendid audience, increasing in number, greeted the evangelists last night. The choir sang with inspiration, and the solos contributed were greatly appreciated. Miss Stockton challenged her audience with the question asked on one occasion by the Master, "What Think Ye of Christ?" She said in part: "Carlyle well said that a thinking man is the biggest enemy that the devil possesses, and Carlyle was right, for when a man thinks he cannot but consider the claims of Jesus Christ, and his thinking must lead him to the Saviour's feet. The reason people are not Christians today is simply because they have never stopped to consider the character and identity and claims of the Son of God.

"My thought concerning Jesus is that He is the Son of God. This is declared seventy-one times in the New Testament, and five times as it emphasized when He is declared 'the Only Begotten Son of God.' People never fail to admire Jesus. The declaration of the ages that of Pilate, 'I can find no fault in this man.' But if they declare Him to be the greatest teacher who ever lived, the greatest reformer who ever walked this earth, and say not that He was the Son of God, they have robbed Him of all that made Him what He was."

Miss Stockton also declared her thought of Him as the saviour of the world, the sustainer of her life, the sovereign of the Christian's heart, and the future supreme judge.

GERMAN BENT GRASS SEED ARRIVES FOR THE OAKMONT COUNTRY CLUB GOLF LINKS

First Appearance in California of Grass Which Is Favored on Eastern Courses; Secured Direct From Germany by Architect Max Behr

GRADING OF THE GROUNDS THIS WEEK

Design of Building to Accentuate the Big Lounge and Dining Rooms, Both of Which Will Be Available for Dancing

Huge, dusty-looking sacks, stuffed very full, yesterday focused the eyes of every visitor to the office of the Oakmont Country club, who generally had enough curiosity to ask the contents of so strange a looking pile in a business office. The explanation forthcoming was that the sacks, which have just arrived from overseas, contain 900 pounds of German bent grass, to be used in seeding the golf course of the club.

The sacks are said to contain half the available supply of bent grass seed in the whole United States. This seed makes a very fine, close turf that takes possession of the soil and runs out other grasses. It is in high favor on eastern golf courses, but Oakmount is the first California course to adopt it.

As may be surmised, the seed is hard to obtain but in this case was secured through the friendly offices of Architect Max Behr, who has London connections. The course will be given a double seeding in June, as soon as the grading operations are completed, and it is expected a ten-hole course will be ready for use in October.

Twenty teams are being put to work on the grading this wkeek.

The plans for the clubhouse are so nearly completed it is expected a permit for the $50,000 building will be taken out within t wo weeks. Some modifications in the plans have been made, but in a general way they conform to the original outline, being of the English type of architecture and rustic enough to fit the environment.

A huge lounge 50x60, and an even bigger diningroom 50x70 will absorb the bulk of the building. These two open into each other and will both be available for dancing, as will also the floor of the pergola entered through the French windows. The wing running south of the lounge has been reserved for the smaller lounge and lockers of lady patrons. North of the dining-room is to be a wonderful $4,000 kitchen, and beyond that the lockers for men members.

At this end is to be placed the swimming pool, for which a contract has been let to Harry Hooper of Montrose, a landscape architect. He will make it of the natural rock and a thing of beauty, irregular in shape with ledges rising from its edge containing pockets in which ferns and other plants will be set.

For the irrigation of the grounds the Draper sprinkling system will be used, which carries such a stream that seven nozzles will irrigate five acres.

SAYS NEOLITHIC MAN FROM NORTH

[By Associated Press]

EUGENE, Ore., May 16.—Neolithic man used the natural highway of the Columbia river gap in spreading fan-like over the North American continent from the north Pacific slopes, in the opinion of Dr. Edwin T. Hodge, professor of geology at the University of Oregon. After crossing the Bering straits from Asia the first races in North America moved southward from Alaska, explained Dr. Hodge. These tribes of hunters followed the fertile costal regions as far south as the Klamath mountains in Oregon. The high Siskiyous prevented further movement southward.

Following the tasteful salmon and pressing onward by growing numbers and the "eastward urge," the ancestors of the Indians found in America by the explorers entered the plateaus of Oregon and Washinton, said the geologist. Then enticed by the roving herd of bison, which dwelt on the plateaus, the neolithic men gradually moved eastward along the Snake river country of Idaho, thence through the open ranges of Wyoming onto the great plains. From there, Prof. Hodge says, they deployed eastward to all parts of the American continent.

Dr. Hodge pictures the paleontological events which led up to the meeting of the white man and the Indian in Oregon. He says: "The white men who began to arrive from Europe on the Pacific coast in 1741 had the same origin as the Oregon Indian, but along a different line of descent. They are brothers, and like brothers they have so treated each other, one with hospitality and the other with a sense of superiority and greed."

Writing about the Albany mounds, Dr. Hodge made this statement: "There interred lies the mute evidence of the story of kindred brothers, separated by 500,000 years who finally in their last sleep laid down, in peace, together."

"NE'ER DO WELL" MAKES GOOD ON ITS FIRST NIGHT

One of the best photoplays seen in Glendale in many months is Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "The Ne'er-Do-Well," which was given its first showings at the T., D. & L. Theatre last night. The story, by Rex Beach, is based on the regeneration idea.

Kirk Anthony (Thomas Meighan) lives up to the title of the production, and his father is thoroughly ashamed of him. One night at a party his friends are feeling gay and they decide that it would be a good joke on the unsuspecting Kirk to ship him to Panama penniless.

So it is that Anthony finds himself far from home and with no means of communication. Then the thrilling moments and mirth provoking episodes begin. He gets himself into great trouble with the authorities and, more serious still, finds himself desperately in love with a beautiful Spanish girl, played by Lila Lee. How he becomes a real man and wins a charming woman for his wife make an interesting story. The cast is made up of highly capable players, including Gertrude Astor, John Miltern, Gus Weinberg, Jules Cowles, Laurance Wheat and George O'Brien.

ARROWHEAD LAKE IS MECCA FOR FISHERMEN

W. J. Royle of the Glendale police department and Wally Streeland of Glendale, with several friends from Minnesota returned Tuesday morning from Arrowhead lake, where they have been stopping for about ten days.

"Talk about fish," says W. J. "We got the limit every day and they were dandy ones, too. We are sold on Arrowhead lake. In their public camping park where they charge $1 per day for camping privileges, they have electric lights, sanitary toilets, hot and cold water showers—everything that a fellow could wish. And the big thing is, you sleep under the pines, and get fresh air galore."

GEORGE J. GOULD DIES IN FRANCE

extricating it from financial difficulties, whereupon he sold at 120 the interest originally acquired at ten. This was the first feat of that generalship which, over and over in later life, made him the foremost railroad developer of his time.

George Jay Gould, even when quite young, showed an inclination to follow in the footsteps of his father. He received a thorough education from private instructors, and subsequently entered Columbia University, but was not graduated.

After a tour of Europe, be became a clerk in the Western Union office, where he developed such an aptitude for detail that he soon became the assistant of his father. George Gould was at his desk ten hours a day, and often remained long into the night, learning the business which, when he became its vice-president a few years later, operated more than a million miles of telegraph wire.

This apprenticeship prepared him for the responsibility developing upon him when Jay Gould died. Soon after he obtained full charge of his father's interests he called upon J. Pierpont Morgan in regard to the purchase of the New York and Northern railway by the Manhattan elevated road. Something was said which angered Mr. Gould, and he vowed never to enter the Morgan offices again.

Fearing, however, that he had made a powerful enemy, he determined to neutralize its effect by an alliance with the financial interests of the world. He called upon John D. Rockefeller, outlined his plans, and asked the oil magnate's advice. There was something in young Gould's manner that won the friendship of Mr. Rockefeller, and a plan for harmonious operation of the Rockefeller and Gould railroad interests was arranged.

Next, Mr. Gould seized upon a circumstance which brought him close to Andrew Carnegie, who was engaged in a controversy with the Pennsylvania railroad at the time. The ironmaster offered Gould a liberal contract in exchange for bringing the Wabash road into Pittsburgh on its way to the Atlantic coast, and through these concessions the railroad builder secured another powerful friend.

For two decades after the death of his father, George Gould continued to manage the vast properties, and many financiers and railroad men have declared that he frequently surpassed his famous mentor in his capacity to weave a indefinitee jumble of railroads in a definite and complete system.

He was a director of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway company, the Rio Grande Southern railroad, the Utah Fuel company and of the Manhattan Railway company. During his career he had been president of the Little Rock and Fort Smith railway, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Missouri Pacific railway, president of the Texas and Pacific railway, president of the International and Great Northern railway, director of the Wabash railway, and vice-president of the Western Union telegraph company.

Dissatisfaction among other of the heirs of Jay Gould over George's handling of the estate, however, had been growing for some time, and in July, 1919, he was removed as executor and trustee by a court order.

Mr. Gould's first marriage was in 1886 to Edith Kingdon, who dropped dead while playing golf on the Gould estate at Lakewood, N. J., in November, 1921. From this union there were five children.

In May, 1922, Mr. Gould married Jeanne Sinclair, a former actress, 30 years his junior. The second marriage was regarded as almost as much of an elopement as the marriage of three of his children, Edith, George Jr., and Kingdon. The first news of it came from Paris, where the couple were spending their honeymoon, but it later transpired that the ceremony was performed in Lakewood. As a consequence of this second marriage, Mr. Gould lost property valued at $3,000,000 left by his first wife, which reverted to a trust fund for her children.

While Mr. Gould apparently enjoyed good health during the years he spent as a railroad builder, it developed during a lawsuit in 1923 that he had suffered a breakdown, and was spending most of his time in Europe recuperating from bronchial trouble.

In the spring of 1923 he became seriously ill while in Egypt, and was hurried back to his villa in Southern France suffering from pneumonia. For several weeks his life was despaired of by the foremost physicians of Europe.

Mr. Gould's home in Lakewood, N. J., has been described as one of the most magnificent country places in America. It was modelled after the old English estates, and had its gate-keeper, its lodge, its master of the hounds and its master of the hunt.

The financier had been a lover of outdoor sports from boyhood, and continued to ride, hunt and play golf as long as his health would permit. He was a member of the New York Yacht club, the Atlantic Yacht club, the Royal Southampton and Royal Thames Yacht clubs, as well as the New York Athletic club, and other national and international organizations.

The Association of the Army of the United States is extending an invitation to all officers and former officers of the military and naval service of the United States and of the governments with whom the United States was affiliated during the World war to attend the fifteenth meeting, to be held at "The Elite," 635 South Flower street, Los Angeles, on May 18, at 6 o'clock p. m.

Colonel Smith's long service in the army dates back to 1886, the year of his graduation from the military academy at West Point. He served against the Indians in the Cheyenne river country, fought through the Spanish-American war with General Funston, commanded the Sixth infantry during the Pershing Expedition into Mexico, and led the Fifty-second regiment, Sixth division, through the World war.

COTTON MILLS REDUCE OUTPUT

[By Associated Press]

SHANGHAI, May 16.—The cotton mills of Shanghai have agreed to a reduced production schedule, for a period of 60 days, that will cut their output by 50 per cent. This was brought about under an agreement approved by the Cotton Mill Owners' association and was caused by a weak and falling market for yarn at a time when high prices were ruling for raw cotton.

It was estimated that stocks of yarn in the hands of mills and merchants in Shangai ran to 100,000 bales.

That the senator is "sold" to Glendale was stated by Mr. Hayselden.

THE modern bank's escrow officer is merely a stakeholder. He is non-partisan. His business is to protect both buyer and seller of property on a cold, efficient, impersonal basis. He closes an escrow only when all agreements by all parties interested are fulfilled.

Thus, escrow services of the modern bank are a valuable and important factor in business transactions involving exchange of property.

The escrow department of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank maintains a high point of efficiency, not alone in the interest of the bank,—because an escrow is of little direct profit,—but in the interest of the community and the protection of patrons.

Glendale Industrial Exposition
MAY 25 TO JUNE 3, 1923

The huge model of Glendale is now nearing completion and will be installed in the Glendale Industrial Exhibition in time for the opening on May 25th. Every detail that is possible to emphasize Glendale as the fastest growing city in America and the most desirable place in which to live, is being included in this monster work.

I desire to take this opportunity of thanking all who supplied plans and data for the completeness of this work, but also wish to remind those who have interests in Glendale and who have not yet sent in the data necessary to include their property on the model, that they should act promptly, as the time is now very short, and to avoid disappointment at not seeing their interests on this model as unveiled, would advise that they get in touch with me by telephone or arrange to inspect the model while under construction, for which purpose visitors may come to my studio on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 14, 15 and 16, from 6:30 to 9:00 o'clock.

This model of Glendale will be the last word in model construction and nothing like it shown on the Pacific Coast since my large model of the city of New York, which took the Gold Medal at the Panama Pacific International Exhibition, San Francisco, in 1915.

Truths in Epigram

Animals are such agreeable friends—they ask no questions, they pass no criticisms. —George Eliot.

I have had many troubles in my life, but the worst of them never came.—Garfield.

There is one species of terror which those who are unwilling to suffer the reproach of cowardice have wisely dignified with the name of antiaithy.—Johnson.

THE CONSTITUTION

The singular value of the oratorical contest that was brought to a climax last week, has been mentioned before. The first prize, as news columns already have related, went to Arthur L. Syvertson of Pasadena; second to Melsey Lindsey of Santa Monica. There were others of such high merit that in making their decisions the judges had a delicate task. All of the orations were about the constitution.

It is timely to quote again a paragrah from the Syvertson address as follows:

"Millions of people are born in the United States each year. These people grow up through a happy childhood and come into manhood. They accept all of the liberties of the priceless gift of American citizenship, without thinking from whence these liberties come. They go through life in this land of prosperity and happiness, enjoying individual pleasures and opportunities more numerous than have been enjoyed by any other people who have ever existed on the face of the globe."

Senator Shortridge presided at the final contest, speaking in glowing and patriotic phrases well adapted to such an occasion. After a tribute to the flag as the emblem of law, order, safety, righteousness and peace, the senator, referring to the influx of radical doctrines through foreigners who do not know the inspiration of liberty, said:

"Our country has been attacked and is being attacked. The time has come when we must shut the doors of the Atlantic to the incoming of revolutionary men and women. We cannot compromise with these persons intent to destroy what has taken centuries to build."

On the same page containing these excerpts, with the context of each, was an account of the trials of nine "radicals," the conviction of four, and the recommendation of the jury that the guilty be deported. These men are not radicals in the sense that they are advanced thinkers, who have devised a better plan of government. They are sworn enemies of the government as it exists, the government founded on the constitution which the earnest young students had been studying, and of the purpose of which they had become acutely aware.

For the most part the sinister plotters against the government, the men and women filled with hatred for all authority, unless able to exercise it themselves, are brought into this country with their opinions fully formed. They are the willing agencies of destruction. It is safe to assume that they are beyond reforming, no longer amenable to instruction, scoffing at suasion. There is no satisfaction in placing them in jail, even though to do this may be a measure essential to public safety. The truth is they do not belong in America. They must remain alien whether here or elsewhere. From the melting-pot they emerge only as dross. They have no legitimate part nor lot in the land producing such young men as last week electrified a great audience by their several theses on the constitution. The only protection is to send them away, and to prevent the coming of more of their kind.

THE AMERICAN STANDPOINT

The state senate has passed a measure requiring that history taught in the public schools of this state be from the American standpoint. The intention is proper. Such a measure was made necessary through the introduction of textbooks that distinctly were anti-American. However, in theory, history is not properly to be taught from any standpoint. It should be the unbiased narration of fact. The truth ought to prevail. The conduct of nations should be portrayed in a manner descriptive of the actualities, and of the conditions behind the outstanding events of record. The veracious account of the United States from its beginnings to the present, is the desirable history. It would vindicate the revolutionary spirit of the forefathers, would show that this nation never had taken up arms in an unjust cause, but ever had sought to uphold liberty. Such a history need not be from an American standpoint, but would be bound to represent the knowledge of any fair historian, regardless of his nationality. A text book colored by prejudice is not properly to be regarded as history. Rather it is special pleading. It could not deserve a place in the classroom. For these reasons a history proclaimed as from an American standpoint easily might err in the direction of favoritism. Wherein the United States may have made mistakes in policy, it is essential that these be written down together with its notable achievements in peace and war. The most ardent American could ask no more. But when there is detected a deliberate plot to mislead the minds of pupils, and to make them think their own country wrong in its contentions, unfortunate in its leaders, incompetent in diplomacy, and second-rate in war, the time had come to drive out the false teachers. To do this does not imply a wish to go to the opposite extreme.

THE POISON PEN

The arrest is sought of a prominent citizen of New York on the charge that he is guilty of using a "poison pen." The term has a peculiar significance. The wielder of such a pen is inspired by the basest motives. He is malicious to a degree that cannot be described, because the normal human mind is unable to thrust itself, for research, into the deeps of such degradation. He is a monstrosity, yet perhaps he moves among decent people, in every outward aspect their social and moral equal. The abhorrent nature that takes this mode of expressing itself must be regarded as insane. No person not insane could be so debased and not by some visible token betray himself.

For years there has been an outpouring of these poison letters. They have had the effect of breaking up families. They have driven victims to suicide, or destroyed their minds. They were of course anonymous, bearing false signatures or without signature. Sometimes the writer had a half-truth as the basis of his assault, sometimes the entire screed was baseless, except that in some mysterious way, the infliction of pain was a pleasure to the author.

There could be no worse coward than the one guilty of anonymous assault. People who write habitually, expressing their opinions in newspapers, for example, find occasion to say unpleasant things, but they say them openly. They do not (with a few notable exceptions) say them for the purpose of inflicting hurt. Every such individual reaps a harvest of anonymous condemnation, learning by experience to view it with indifference. But such condemnation does not invariably emanate from a "poison" pen.

Sometimes there is nothing more unsatisfactory than an unkissed kiss.

Laziness is the fruit of misdirected philosophy.

CONTRASTS IN CHINA

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Business men of China, so it is reported in dispatches from the orient, will offer themselves as hostages for the release of the foreigners held captive by the Shantung brigands.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

This they will do to save the face of their beloved China before the world. It might be well to consider these men and the class and feeling they represent before being too violent in our condemnation of China as a whole.

I wonder if a bunch of hold-up men in some southwestern fastness should capture a train of orientals of high degree whether our business men would feel the disgrace enough to offer themselves as hostages for the release of the captives?

That Chinese business men should be willing to do such a thing, that they should even contemplate it speaks well for the quality of Chinese honor.

The merchants and bankers who contemplate this step are as much ashamed of the bandits as some of us in America are ashamed of our lynchers and to redeem their country in the eyes of the world are willing to put their persons in jeopardy. In this connection it is well to recall the fact that of late years every bandit gang that has been captured in China has been summarily beheaded in spite of the fact that for ordinary crimes China has adopted shooting rather than beheading as a method of execution.

In view of these things the foreign nations might do well to assist China to control her lawless element instead of threatening to invade her.

Brigandage is brigandage; but it is interesting to consider the treatment of Miss Aldrich by her captors. Miss Lucy Aldrich was fortunate in that her hair was gray, for in China age is honored. She found herself sheltered and protected by the poor, rough men who had derailed a train, seized her and her traveling companions.

Which proves, I think, that brigandage is more a point of view than one of morals. No doubt a Chinese brigand will cut your throat if need be, but it is a fact well known to missionaries that if safe conduct is purchased from the head of a brigand hand in China the bargain will be kept. Indeed, I have personal knowledge of one such case. A young missionary on his way to a post in the interior had paid for safe conduct through the brigand's compredore in Canton, but through some accident the message did not reach the robbers operating in the mountain fastnesses and the young man was killed.

When his murderers found that he had bought safe conduct they were deeply humiliated and at once returned his possessions to his family with regrets and apologies.

All of which shows what curious contrasts can exist side by side in an oriental, or for the matter of that in an occidental land. It also shows that Miss Lucy Aldrich is right when she says that the Chinese are not bad. They are not; they are as we; they have bad and good in their ranks, and it is evident that the good Chinese can and will atone before the world for the outrage committed on foreigners in Shantung.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

MUST AN EXPRESSION BE LITERALLY CORRECT?

(Find the error in this article)

There are some constructions in English that cannot be successfully analyzed from the standpoint of literal accuracy.

When one says, "There were none in the bookcase," we have an example of this, for none is etymologically singular, and is used with a plural verb were. Still the construction is in good taste.

The following is another illustration: "He did not know what to do." The word not, from the standpoint of precision, should procede what. But where is the person who would say, "He did know not what to do", or, "He knew not what to do"? Although the last construction might be used in very formal speech or writing, it is seldom heard elsewhere.

B. C. has written "The Right Word" as follows:

"Your correspondents are certainly sticklers for fine shades of meaning, but here is an obvious query. In all the subway stations are signs that read as follows: 'No Smoking Allowed'. To my way of thinking, this notice is entirely different from 'Smoking Is Not Allowed', which is what I presume they mean. What their sign really says is, 'No Smoking Is Allowed'. In other words they permit people not to smoke. Am I right?

B. C. is right. But how much more concise, forceful, and natural is the present phraseology of the sign.

An interesting side-light on B. C.'s communication, and on many others of like character that "The Right Word" has received, is the interest, evidenced by readers of this column, in the English they casually observe while going about their duties. Examples of unusual or incorrect constructions, or of those that are correct and that illustrate the right application of difficult principles, will always be welcomed by "The Right Word."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

You would like to run the government perhaps.

A laudable ambition or desire.

For a considerable job.

For running the government is a considerable job.

There are a hundred and ten millions of us to be fed, clothed, housed, jobbed and kept in a right state of obedience to law and order.

* * *

That is no small job.

A kind of a corporation with a hundred and ten million stockholders.

Enormous earnings.

Vast expenses and charges.

Wages, taxes, charges, pay checks, bills, payments and the like.

* * *

One of the biggest jobs in the world is running the government.

And nobody could run the whole corporation.

It takes ministers and cabinet officers and secretaries and clerks and functionaries and these, those and the others.

* * *

There are bureaus and departments and posts and places and secretariats.

All with officials doing this, that and the other.

There are members of congress and the senate, and supreme and other courts, and collectors and paymasters and thousands upon thousands of job holders.

* * *

So you see it is no slight thing to run a government.

Much as you might want to run it all alone.

And you might not be as fit to run it as you sometimes think.

There are many times we think we could run the government better than it is being run.

* * *

But to get down to brass tacks, as the boys say on the street, how are we running ourselves?

That is a good way to determine how we might run the government.

How are we doing the little business that falls to us to do individually?

The little place or job or position or situation we have.

How are we running that?

* * *

You, for instance?

How are you running yourself?

Everything going swimmingly?

No troubles of any kind?

No disturbances or complications?

All the bills paid and the jobs done and the friends kept and the responsibilities discharged?

* * *

That is one way to look at the matter.

For surely if a man cannot run himself efficiently and economically and fairly, he would not run a government well.

And a lot of us are taxed to the utmost to run ourselves rightly.

We fuss a good deal and complain a lot and have to hustle about to meet the bills.

* * *

And yet we are certain we could run the government better than it is being run.

We are cocksure of our abilities.

We dispose of international problems with a wave of the hand.

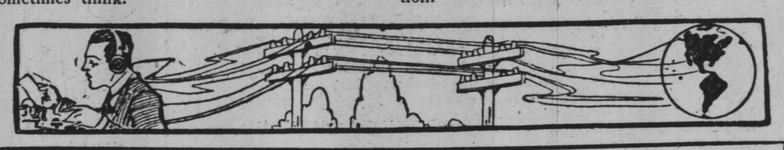
Pass on questions of state and finance.

* * *

All the while paling and failing at the little job before us.

Unable to run our little individual selves well.

Yet certain of abililty to run a whole nation.



Songs of the Poets

Heaven—By Martha Gilbert Dickinson

Only to find Forever, blest
By thine encircling arm;
Only to lie beyond unrest
In passion's dreamy calm!

Only to meet and never part,
To sleep and never wake—
Heart unto heart and soul to soul,
Dead for each other's sake.

MORBIDITY IN NEWSPAPERS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PERHAPS the newspaper is no place in which to criticize newspapers.

Still, a correspondent has just sent me a list of headlines taken from an evening newspaper of New York City on March 26, which list gives occasion for thought.

Of course a thing is news in proportion as it is unusual. And to the reflective mind the very fact that this collection of morbidities is published argues that the population is normally quite sane and law abiding.

But the trouble with most readers is that they do not have reflective minds and it is rather a serious question whether it is worth while to promote morbidity. Some of the headings which my correspondent has collected are as follows:

"Six Bandits in Taxi Rob Big Show Window."

"Truck Strikes Column and Smashes Jeweler's Clock."

"Mme. Bernhardt Unconscious."

"French Corporal Is Slain in the Ruhr."

"Three Women and Man Perish in Flames."

"Wife Deserted, Denounced and Sent to Sing Sing."

"Finds His Father Dead of Gas."

"Two Killed and Seven Hurt in Motor Accident."

"Taxi Bandits Rob Four Chauffeurs."

"Pair Asking Separation Make Counter Charges."

"Girl Drinks Iodine After Quarrel With Sweetheart."

"Stowaway Leaps Overboard and Dies in Swim to Shore."

"Mob Fights in Stalled Bronx Subway Train."

"Poison Liquor Claims Five in Philadelphia."

"Shocked to Death Stealing a Ride."

"Body of Suicide Nurse Found."

"Slays Wife When She Spurns Reconciliation."

"Man Dies on Sidewalk; May Be Poison Rum Victim."

Of course the reason for printing this stuff is that it is the kind of stuff people want to read.

I ask you if it is pleasant reading.

I indulge in no Utopian dreams of finding a newspaper that does not publish crime and horror.

I have no notion of reforming the press nor telling editors how to run their papers.

But in the privacy of my own chamber and at moments when thoughts come and go of their own sweet will, I sometimes indulge in the wonder as to whether feeding the populace on raw meat all the time is good policy.

And even go so far as to wonder whether in the long run it pays.

And having climbed out of my little hole and barked, I will now return again into that darkness from which I emerged and allow managing editors to run their papers as they see fit and people to read them if they want to.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

POWER OF SONG

[Lowell Courier-Citizen]

Lullabies as antidotes for soap-box oratory are proposed by Vice President Coolidge, always fertile in practical and specific suggestions. Such at least is the proper application, as it might seem, of his suggestions made at the Jonas Chickering centenary exercises. What time the raucous notes of the red spellbinder rise on the air let the crowd hear from another box. a veritable music box, forty or fifty feet away with a soprano singing the rock-a-by song from The Old Homestead. If a radical gathering in Tremont Temple or Faneuil hall breaks out with strains of the Marseillaise let a group of patriotic hecklers quell the demonstration by drowning it out with "Rock me to sleep, mother" or "Silver threads among the gold." Here is an admirable scheme for securing the safety of the republic. A new twist is thus given to an old adage: "Let me sing the songs for a nation and I care not who denounces its supreme court."

AMERICAN COUNTY JAILS

[Springfield Republican]

Joseph F. Fishman, a federal prison inspector, who has visited nearly every jail in the United States, many of them several times, in the past sixteen years, is quoted as saying:

"As they stand at present, the jails of the United States are melting pots. Into them are thrown helter-skelter the old, the young, the guilty, the innocent, the diseased and the healthy, there to be mixed with further ingredients of filth, cold, stagnant air and bad plumbing, and all brought to a boil by the fires of competent idleness. Only the strongest can resist the fusion."

Local federal prisoners are confined in county and city jails. Many of them are thus subjects of legitimate government concern, though, of course, not to the extent of conferring upon the government to institute or demand such reforms as are needed.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The history of the harbor at San Pedro is most interesting. That the importance of the harbor as a factor in development is recognized, is well attested in the recent organization of the Greater Harbor committee of 200. The organization starts out with a fund of $200,000, the result of a $1000 contribution from each member.

HENRY JAMES

No community not progressive and thoroughly awake could make a similar showing of public spirit.

There was a great struggle in starting the harbor. In the beginning it had the opposition of the then politically dominant, Southern Pacific. Collis P. Huntington, head of the railroad, had determined upon Santa Monica as the site. There was a long and bitter fight, as the outcome of which the mighty Huntington experienced one of his few defeats.

For a long time it was customary for outsiders to sneer at the possibility of San Pedro. They quite overlooked the fact that most of the great harbors of the world are artificial, and only a small number in any considerable part the gift of nature.

Now has come the day when the coastal trade of San Pedro harbor exceeds that of all the other Pacific ports, and goes beyond the total of New York in similar traffic.

With the coming of this day the Greater Harbor committee tosses $200,000 on the table and says there is to be something doing, and doubtless the committee will justify its faith.

Certain citizens of Burbank desire abolition of the police force. They think that in lieu of it, a few conspicuous signs suggesting that the laws be respected, would be just as effective and much cheaper.

The proposed experiment might be successful. That is to say, Burbank may be able to usher in a little millenium of its own. Either this, or the scheme must be a fluke.

Of course, when the day comes that a "No Trespass!" notice will be potent to check the burglar, and "Please Drive Slowly" will reach the conscience and guide the judgment of the speeding lunatic, the Burbank idea will fill the bill.

The Dutch treat is the proper system. Why the method that requires each of a social lunch party to pay for his own, should be called Dutch, is not known here, and isn't worth looking up, but it is all right, whatever its origin.

In every lunch party there is at least one tightwad, and some unduly free with their small change. The result is that the former, even though the suggestion of lunch came from him, eats habitually, and never pays a cent. He is a very annoying grafter. The way to suppress him is to make him pay or leave his watch with the cashier. It is unscriptural to feed him.

There is a habit of saying that a man is "worth a million" or whatever may be the sum representing his wealth. The sum in question may have nothing to do with his worth. It is quite possible that he is devoid of the quality of worth.

A recent news item told of a citizen "worth" $246,000 who, when his wife needed a set of teeth, forced her to take in washing to pay for them.

The man in this case could not be counted as worth the face of the meanest coin rattling in his own-way pocket.

Hindenburg says that at the close of the war the Germans were ready for peace, but that the feeling has changed now to deep hatred, and thoughts of peace have been eradicated from Germany.

Of course, the Germans were ready for peace; ready to resume their industrial conquests, partly upon the spoils stolen from France; ready to forget their debts, and all the unpleasant incidents of their invasion.

That is to say, with a defeat that presented every aspect of a complete victory, they were in humor to be satisfied.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The good wife trapped me into going to hear a strange preacher the other night, and I'm glad of it. Usually I like to sit under a doctrine. It doesn't interfere with independent thought. I can puzzle out next week's course of business to a gnat's eyebrow when I am sitting under the ministration of my own minister. But this man was worth listening to. One could disagree with him so easily.

"A bossy woman," said he, "ought not to marry."

There were a lot of other things he had said before this was dropped in my ear. It had been pleasantly aware that he was jazzing the gospel and was presenting a combination between vaudeville and Martin Luther. But I like this—for a minute. I do not like being bossed by my wife at all. Not at all. I react against it vigorously.

"A woman," said he, "should render obedience to her husband."

That's right, too. I'm with him every time. When I issue orders at home I want 'em lived up to. But I am not going to insist, because every now and then Mrs. Pilgrim proves that the quality of her gray matter is a shade finer than mine. If I had my way I would now have the finest line of extinct mining stock ever found outside of a museum. Only the fortunate chance that she caught me reading oil literature kept me from soaking that little I saved last year into a duster. I was on my way to buy a farm—having precisely the same need for a farm that I have for a four-year-old elephant—when she caught me at it. She bossed me into saving the first dollar I had ever saved, except for that three months' struggle during which I amassed enough money to pay the preacher and buy a ring. She has worked me over until in the dark I can pass for a pretty good citizen as long as I keep still. I have scars on my self-esteem that have been burned on by a hot iron.

It's a mighty good thing for me, being the weak vessel that I am, that I married a bossy woman. Also that she bossed me the right way.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

The first artificial incubation of fish eggs was brought about by early Chinese fish-breeders, who filled empty hen shells with fish spawn and then put them under a hen to hatch.

Scientists at the Buenos Aires Zoological Garden are endeavoring to develop a domesticated type of wild breed of fowls having all white meat which are native to Southern Patagonia.

A laboratory weighing machine has been invented so small that it weight only three grains itself, and sensitive to a ten-millionth of a milligram.

Although the coasts of Haiti abound in many varieties of excellent food fish, fishing is done in a primitive fashion and that country had to import 4,509,382 pounds of dried and canned fish last year.

NEW FURNITURE STORE TO HAVE BIG OPENING

New England Furniture Co. Plans Community Entertainment

Elaborate preparations are under way for the grand opening of the New England Furniture Company's large new store located at 229-231 South Brand boulevard, to take place Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Aside from an attractive musical program to be rendered by Kelly Shrine Orchestra, a fashion show that will dazzle the eyes of Glendale maids and matrons has been announced, in which a number of Glendale beauties will appear.

On Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings the people of Glendale are invited to visit the store and make themselves acquainted with the management and the offers to be made regularly in home furnishings. Each visitor is to be given a numbered ticket, which will entitle the holder to a chance for three valuable prizes to be given away Saturday night. During the program numbers Saturday night three numbers will be drawn. The first will entitle the owner to a beautiful floor lamp, the second to a walnut magazine rack, and the third to a pair of polychrome book ends.

The New England Furniture Company, which is incorporated at $500,000, now operates three stores in Los Angeles, and has chosen Glendale as the first location outside of Los Angeles for a new store. It contemplates the establishment of similar stores in Hollywood, Long Beach and Santa Monica, but watching the development of Glendale, chose the location in this city first.

The company has as its president, B. L. Gates, a capitalist from Seattle, who is now making his home in Los Angeles. S. F. Smith, vice-president, has had years of experience in the furniture business in Chicago, but sold his chain of stores there and came to Los Angeles with his family. Royal Sawtelle, secretary, is an able furniture dealer, coming from Pendleton, Oregon, and recently from Seattle, Washington. Through the establishment of the New England Furniture Company's store here six families will be added to the population of Glendale.

The store building was erected especially for this company by the Roy L. Kent company. It has space of 10,000 square feet for the stock display and aside from this a large warehouse will be used for storage.

The furniture sales will be so conducted that the customer who desires to do a credit business will be charged no interest on his account. Mr. Sawtelle explained that the company personally handles all credit accounts, and that therefore it is able to dispense with the interest charged at most of the large furniture stores.

Owing to the fact that the New England Furniture company operates a chain of stores it buys by the carload lots from eastern manufacturers, thereby enabling it to offer competitive prices.

"Wherever possible, we intend to patronize the home manufacturer," stated Mr. Sawtelle, "and will carry home products as well as eastern goods in our line of stock.

"We take each room in the home as a unit," Mr. Sawtelle stated, in reference to the stock, "and we offer a complete line of furnishings for each room in the house. We are anxious to have the Glendale people attend our opening and become acquainted with our line of goods."

Nothing provokes a proud woman like a lack of pride in her husband.

SOUTH GLENDALE LIBRARIAN AMID HIS NEW BOOKS

By CHARLES H. CUSHING
Librarian of South Branch Library

After listening to the splendid ecture Monday night by Tom Skeyhill on the "New Renaissance f European Civilization," I feel mpelled to let people know how he library can help them to make a practical application of the lec ure.

The science of eugenics is comratively new and it is in the appli ation of this science, as Mr. Skeyill says, that the hope of our resent civilization lies.

The library has on its shelves a et of books by W. Grant Hague, M. D., on the "Eugenic Marriage." The four volumes of this work over every phase of the subject most thoroughly. The books have been used to some extent but if people realized the real significance of the matter they would be in constant demand.

The schools and libraries must spread the gospel of eugenics. Every young man and every young woman should realize that they are directly responsible for the salvation of our present civilization, for it is only through them that the ie can be produced and the appalling ratio of increase of the unfit checked.

The library also has books which mphasize the folly and futility of war which was stressed by Mr. Skeyhill in his lecture. Such books re "The Folly of Nations," by Frederick Palmer and "The Next War," by Will Irwin.

Another need emphasized by the ecturer was a reform in the hurch, getting away from ritual nd creed, back to the simplicity nd truth of real Christianity. This need is emphasized by such books s "Painted Windows," by "A gentleman with a duster," "A Christian's Appreciation of Other Faiths" by Reid and "The Three Things," by Mary R. S. Andrews.

"SOULS FOR SALE" IS NOVELTY PLOT AND SPECTACULAR

A photoplay that is far out of the beaten paths is Goldwyn's new Rupert Hughes' film, "Souls for Sale," adapted and directed by the author from his novel of life among the motion picture colony in Hollywood, which is now on view at the Glendale Theatre. This is undoubtedly one of the biggest and most important productions of the season; it is on a bigger scale than anything Mr. Hughes has hitherto done for the screen. He has consciously selected a theme peculiarly adaptable to the films and capable of a broader and more spectacular treatment than he customarily gives to his themes.

The introductory movie scenes in the desert are picturesque and most human—in fact, the movie people introduced are always human and are distinct individuals, not film types. The spectacular climax in the burning of the big circus tent, in a great storm, gives a thrill that one will long remember. The photography is splendid.

The cast is one of the best that Goldwyn has ever assembled. In the six big featured roles are Eleanor Boardman, Mae Busch, Barbara La Marr, Frank Mayo, Richard Dix and Lew Cody. Among a score of others are Arthur Hoyt, Sylvia Ashton, Aileen Pringle, Margaret Bourne, Forrest Robinson and David Imboden. Truly a photoplay not to be missed.

MISSPELLED TO JAIL

LONG BEACH, Calif., May 16.—(United Press).—"Ninety" spelled "ninty" may spell the downfall of L. R. Markham, 23, alleged forger. He was arrested on a charge of forging a $90 check. He was asked at the jail to write out a check for a similar amount. The handwriting was different from the check introduced as evidence, but the tell-tale "ninty" appeared in both instances.

NEWS OF EAGLE ROCK

INTERESTING PLAN SUGGESTED FOR BUSINESS GIRLS

Club for Self-supporting Girls Will Have Meeting Thursday Night

EAGLE ROCK, May 16.—The Business and Professional Women's Club will meet at the home of Katherine Bessolo, 155 Ellenwood Drive, on Thursday evening, for a club-planning meeting. Definite plans and aims of the organization will be faced at this time, and all present will have an opportunity to take part in the discussion and ask for whatever amusement or instruction will prove most beneficial and pleasant to them. This club has had several meetings at the home of Mrs. Mary Fiske who has been one of the active participants in the work of this organization for the business girls.

Many suggestions have been received by those taking active part in the formation of the club, although none have been definitely decided on as yet. It is probable that classes will be organized in aesthetic and folk - dancing, dramatics and music. Student teachers from Occidental could be secured to teach the dancing unit. For those who like to get out of doors there is a splendid opportunity for hiking in the surrounding hills, and a number of such trips will no doubt take place as soon as the organization is in full swing. Frequent dinners for the girls are also considered as a part of the very interesting program that these business and professional women will make up at this meeting tomorrow night.

Such an organization as this fills a growing need of those girls who are in the city throuhout the day, at their work, and wish an opportunity to get together with others in the evening so they can take up studies which are not only educational and instructive, but enjoyable because they are things which the girls have longed for an opportunity to study.

The club is open to all self supporting girls, office girls, school teachers, or girls in any of the professions. Everyone of these who is interested in the organization is asked to meet with those who have already signified their intention of being a part of the club at the Bessolo home tomorrow night.

L. A. CHOIR IS BIG IMPETUS FOR MUSIC WEEK

Supplemented by the Apollo Quartet and Well Known Stars

An entertainment that is advertised as the greatest event in the musical history of Eagle Rock will take place on Friday evening, May 18, at the Women's Twentieth Century club house, when the celebrated First Congregational church choir of Los Angeles, composed of 60 voices under the direction of John Smallman, will give a concert of sacred and secular numbers.

The choir will be assisted by the Apollo quartet of Los Angeles, a splendid group of singers who put harmony into their work. The quartet consists of Louis Yackel, first tenor; George Granlich, second tenor; Robert Smith, baritone, and Cliff Bates, bass. On this occasion John Smallman will take Robert Smith's place in the quartet.

Lorna Gregg, accompanist of the Los Angeles Oratorio society, will be at the piano, and Sol Cohen, widely known for his violin solo work, will favor with several selections.

Dr. Carl Patton will make an address while the singers are resting during the intermission. It has been said by those who have heard him that Dr. Patton could make the Sahara sands appear beautiful by his wonderful manner of speaking. His address will relate to the position and service of music and choir work in the church.

As a director, John Smallman is without a peer, and under his expert guidance, this choir has gained high and enviable reputation through the west. All who can attend will enjoy a really meritorious entertainment.

LOUISE KRAKAR IS MADE BRIDE OF ALHAMBRA MAN

EAGLE ROCK, May 16.—One of the first spring weddings took place at high noon today in the Church of Saint Dominic, when Louise Krakar of 145 East Adams avenue, Eagle Rock, became the bride of Clayton Barnes of Alhambra. The pretty ceremony was witnessed by relatives and a few close friends. The bridal couple was attended by Katherine Krakar, sister of the bride, and Ralph Barnes, brother of the groom. Father Francis P. Driscoll read the ceremony.

Mrs. Barnes, nee Krakar, wore her traveling suit and immediately following a wedding luncheon the newlyweds hurried away on a honeymoon trip. Their destination has been kept a close secret, so only the parents of the couple know their whereabouts. They will return to Eagle Rock at the end of a week, as the Southern Pacific railroad, of which Mr. Barnes is an employee, was unable to grant him more than one week's leave of absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will make their home in Eagle Rock temporarily.

CHURCH INVESTS IN LIQUID GOLD

[By Associated Press]

LEWISTOWN, Mont. — The Great Falls district of the Methodist Episcopal church, which comprises much of northern Montana, became owner of an interest in oil rights which may remove it from fear of the pinch of poverty, with the probate of the will of Mrs. Ellen M. Light here.

Co-beneficiary with the church district is Margaret Illington, the actress, a daughter of Mrs. Light. The oil rights bequeathed are on Mrs. Light's ranch near Grassrange, east of here.

'BREAD BAKERS ARE HOME MAKERS' IS BAKERY SLOGAN

Invitation is Extended to School Girls to Learn Process of Making "Staff of Life"

An opportunity to visit the most modern baking establishments and view the processes of bread making from the first mixing until the final baking, and to then sample said freshly baked bread has been extended to the domestic science classes of the Eagle Rock schools by the Davis Standard Perfection Baking company, 130 N. Beaudry, Los Angeles, manufacturers of "Perfection" bread. The invitation comes through the Parent-Teacher association. Over 300 schools from all cities adjacent to Los Angeles have been the guests of this large company on similar tours of inspection through the establishment, which has recently been equipped with every new appliance for the bakery work.

These visits prove helpful and educational to the domestic class students. A fine speaker gives them a definite lecture, pointing out and explaining each process through which the "staff of life" passes in its formation. The students who visit this institution are given an assignment covering their trip for class work, and the essays written often are quite excellent. So it works in as a part of their studies. A large number of pupils can be taken through the plant at once for special instructors and guides are hired for this particular part of the work. Seventy-six girls attended a lecture recently from Pasadena, in charge of five instructors. No date has yet been set when the local classes will take advantage of the invitation, but it has met with the enthusiastic favor and approval of the Parent-Teacher association and the school faculty.

FREDERICK WARDE TO LECTURE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Frederick Warde will lecture at the Burbank high school auditorium Thursday afternoon on the subject, "Fifty Years of Make Believe." A large crowd is expected, as Burbank always welcomes a highclass entertainment.

The members of the Woman's club assisted in the sale of tickets. The Parent-Teachers' association was also interested in the affair so it is expected that the auditorium will be crowded.

Local War Mothers Seek Aid for Men

Mrs. Helen Sadler and Mrs. J. M. Cowlin of the relief committee of the Lester Meyer chapter of War Mothers yesterday visited the Disabled Veterans' rest camp on the Giddings ranch in Altadena, which has been leased for the use of the disabled veterans of the World War. The cabins are in need of repair and refurnishing. The Glendale chapter of War Mothers has agreed to take care of one cabin but found upon examination that it was so run down that it would cost quite a bit to put it in proper condition. The members of the chapter are asking that anyone interested in such work and who would care to do so to contribute towards this expense. If interested call Glendale 143-J.

ST. MARK'S TO MEET THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Did you ever hear of doctor's telling a rich man that there was no hope for him?

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

"— NEXT TO GODLINESS"

There was once a woman who was forced through adverse circumstances to exchange a palatial home for a small and more or less uninteresting apartment.

Through no fault of her own, other than having been a child of riches, the woman had no fund of experience to draw upon when it came to living in an apartment of three rooms and bath.

Her brother, an elderly bachelor, became ill, and the woman struggled along for a few days trying to "cure" her brother with mustard plasters applied over the pain. Some one had told her they were "good for bronchitis." She had no reason to suppose that her brother had bronchitis, but he had a pain in his side. He coughed, was unable to sleep at night, felt chilly, and did not want to eat.

Instead of calling a doctor and acting quickly upon expert advice, the woman casually applied mustard, with rather tragic results.

She burned her brother's chest so badly that it was impossible to apply poultices of ice later when the doctor so desired. This was because she had applied mustard and flour in equal proportions and left the plaster on much too long.

She closed the windows when the sick man complained of chilliness. It seemed the kind thing to do.

The wise thing to do would have been to cover the man up warmly, open the windows wide, shield him from the direct cold, but allow all the oxygen possible to come into the room. When one is suffering from any bronchial or chest trouble it is impossible to give the patient too much fresh air or oxygen. The greatest proof of this is the successful fresh air treatment for pneumonia patients all scientific doctors employ today.

When the poor woman, thoroughly discouraged, did call in a doctor the first thing he did was recommend that the apartment be cleaned.

"But it is my brother that is ill—not the apartment," said the woman, stiffly. She was at the moment sweeping the floor, and the air was so full of dust that the doctor choked and sputtered. The sick man was in a paroxysm of coughing.

"If you would tie a piece of damp muslin around that broom and dust the bare floor instead of disturbing all that dry and unspeakably irritating dust," said the doctor, "it would be much better. Dust is a source of infection and great irritation, especially when the throat and lungs are affected.

"All these heavy curtains and draperies, which sift dust whenever they are disturbed, should be taken down. There is too much furniture in this room. Too many pictures on the walls. Too many curtains and vases and flowers and things."

The woman looked at the doctor in amazement. Then her face softened.

"Of course you are right," she said. "But they are all old things, treasured from my former home."

"Light and air, sunshine and more air, fresh moving air that fills the lungs with purity—these are the all-important things in a sick room. Bare, clean floors, constantly wiped over with a damp, but not wet, brush, help a patient to breathe more comfortably. Cleanliness you know, is next to Godliness, especially in a sick room.

Indian Princess Thrills with Romance, Art and Legends of Her Race

Princess Te Ata and Company Give Two Colorful Programs at Chautauqua on Sixth Day

To acquaint the American people with the wonderful possibilities of native Indian themes for inspiration in music and drama, Thurlaw Lieurance, the distinguished artist-composer, has coached this company of Indian artists in a delightful and unique program for the Chautauqua circuit. Princess Te Ata has been called the Pavlowa of her race. She is highly cultured and with rare charm, grace and power interprets the dramatic legends of the Red Man—legends that are today Indian epics. Te Ata is of the Chickasaw tribe, her name meaning "The Dawn." She is the most artistic exponent of the Indian music and dancing on the platform today. One of her assisting artists is Elizabeth Thompson, of the Sioux tribe, whose Indian name, "Dowanwin," means "Hanging Flower." Dowanwin is known as the greatest contralto of her race. Into their program is woven dramatic feeling and a fine appreciation for the beauty, dignity and restraint of the Indian creative mind.

DIAMOND TIARA FOUND IN LOS ANGELES MAY BE PART OF CZAR'S CROWN JEWELS

Miss Bess B. Johnson, of the internal revenue department, wearing the royal (?) gems.

Startling developments in the search of government agents for the $4,000,000 worth of crown jewels of the late Russian czar, are expected momentarily from Los Angeles. The agents recently recovered a valuable tiara, studded with diamonds, emeralds and pearls which may lead to tracing the entire lot.

COUNCIL CHAMBER IS FILLED WITH VISITORS AT REGULAR TUESDAY MEETING OF TRUSTEES

Citizens Watch City Fathers as They Conduct Routine of Weekly Business Meetings

Many strange faces were seen at the city council meeting Tuesday evening, when the trustees met for the regular weekly business meeting. Wild rumors were spread abroad that the police force would be asked to resign. Something was murmured about an "impeachment" of some one or other. It was all evidently very exciting and the city council chamber was jammed to the window ledges.

The city fathers conducted the business as usual. "Business as usual" was considering of street improvement work. Bids were opened for the work of improvements on Sixth street. George A. Simpson, Cornwell & Henderson, W. J. Kern, V. L. Fleming, Peter L. Ferry and W. D. McCray submitted bids. Eighth street work was bid on by W. D. McCray, George Simpson, Cornwell & Henderson, W. J. Kern, V. L. Fleming and Peter Ferry.

Contractors took down the bids as they were read. It was moved, seconded and carried that the bids be given to the city engineer, F. F. Miller, for checking and reporting to the council. Thereupon a large number of contractors filed out and their seats were taken by others.

The mayor asked if there was any one present who wished to present anything to the board. Evidently there was, but a long pause ensued. A man stepped forward. The audience was breathless and leaned forward to hear every word. He asked if he needed another permit to erect a pump at his gas station. Everybody sat back. The council talked it over. it was decided the permit he already had was sufficient.

The mayor again asked if there was any one who wished to speak. Three times he called for any one in the audience to step forward and present any matter that he wished to bring before the council. Three times there was a breathless pause. Finally, Mr. Shipman came before the council, just as they were talking of adjourning. He asked the councilmen to consider the paving of Verdugo avenue. Some of the property owners wish it done one way and others another. Some want sidewalks and some do not. Finally it was decided by the trustees to meet out in that section at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, to more thoroughly consider the matter.

Again Mayor Crawford called for anyone to step forward who wished enlightenment. More breathless pause followed. Mr. Dort, head of the public service department, sitting on the front row, jumped up and cheered, when some one said: "Let's give three cheers for the mayor and trustees." This was done, then Mr. Hollomon, sitting in the front row, wanted to add a frill, and started clapping, and everybody joined in.

Broad smiles were noticeable on the faces in the audience as, finally, after repeated invitations, no one stepped forward, and the city council adjourned, after having completed a large volume of business concerning street improvements.

MEN'S CLASS TO HAVE UNIQUE SERVICE

The men's class of the Methodist church met at the church Tuesday evening to prepare for the Sunday evening service which they will conduct. There will be a song fest of songs which are at least forty years old. No song younger than forty can be heard at this meeting for all are expected to join in singing the old familiar hymns.

The teacher of the class, Rev. Kraft, will preach the sermon. He has promised to preach one at least fifty years old with a modification that will make it only twenty-five minutes long.

Posters will be sent out Saturday inviting everybody to attend a real old-fashioned church service Sunday night.

TUESDAY'S PERMITS REACH $16,000

The Burbank city engineer, C. F. Miller, says that the town will have six miles of new homes by the end of the year, which is quite an addition to a town whose last census read 3,000 in 1920.

The engineer based his prophecy on the fact that the town averages two electric meters installed in new homes every day. The building inspector announced a total of nearly $200,000 in building costs for the first fifteen days of the month.

The cost of building materials has so increased that Morris Spazier, who took out a permit for $15,000 for the Victory Theater addition, recently, has had to take out a $10,000 permit in addition to cover the unexpected additional cost of the building. The permits issued Tuesday were: P. J. Miller, dwelling, Scott road, $1,800; O. J. Coleman, garage, Shelton tract, $500; James Hillson, dwelling, 925 North Elmwood, $3,500; W. F. Kruse, 445 Palm avenue, $250; M. Spazier, additional cost to Victory Theater addition, $10,000; J. M. Shelton, 336 N. Magnolia avenue, $150. Total, $16,000.

RELICS OF WILLAMETTE

CORVALLIS, Ore. — (United Press).—Willamette valley mound builders were in close touch with the other prehistoric peoples of America, is the belief of Dr. John B. Horner, of the Oregon Argicultural college.

Similarity of stone inscriptions and other ornamentations indicates an intimate relation between the Calapooia mound builders, the Columbia river sun worshippers and the ancient Mexicans and South Americans, he says.

"Indeed all these nations possessed a common written language made up of hieroglyphics and pictographs," said Dr. Horner. This language, common to the people of North and South America, seems to have been brought hither from beyond the Atlantic.

Whence the mound builders came is a matter of conjecture. Some authorities believe they came from other continents, making their way from Siberia, others maintain that they came from the south, and still others that they came from the eastward, over the sunken islands of the Atlantic. The Indian, as he is now known, is a development and modification of the mound builder, says Dr. Horner.

There is nothing so tiresome as a woman who is vain of her beauty —unless it is a man who is vain of what he is pleased to call his brains.

Y. M. BOYS ENJOY PLENTY OF BEANS

Boys were filled to the brim Tuesday night, when the Y. M. C. A. boys of Rev. Thomas Stevenson invited the Y boys of Principal Thomas to a regular dinner. When Rev. Stevenson, wearing a blue gingham apron, could be persuaded to turn from washing dishes in the kitchen at the Presbyterian church to tell what the boys had eaten, he said: "Beans, meat loaf, beans, bread and butter, scalloped potatoes, beans, beans and more beans, ice cream, ranging from three to nine servings, and cake! I think there was some more, but I have forgotten what it was."

The boys were in the dining-room having a whooping time with all sorts of boys' games. They were very much pleased with the "return engagement," as it was called, because Mr. Thomas's boys had previously given a dinner for the Tuesday hosts.

BURBANK MEN TO FORM FOUR-MILE YACHT CLUB

Prominent Citizens Plan to Buy Sea-Going Vessel

Burbank may be thirty miles from the ocean, but the foothill town intends to have Four Mile Yacht club. Twenty-four men of the town are buying a sea-going craft from the government, one of the Eagle submarine chasers which is lying idle in the United States navy yard at San Diego.

The boat will carry fifty people, it is claimed. It is twenty-five feet long, travels twenty-seven knots an hour and can sail the deep blue sea. It is completely equipped with fine wicker furniture. The kitchen has every modern convenience.

The boat will be a de luxes pleasure vessel and it is planned to be used for Sunday "fishing" trips, as well as for vacation trips to Honolulu or up north.

City Engineer C. F. Miller is at the head of the project. City Clerk F. S. Webster, B. Fisher, Dr. Yale, building inspector; Elmer Dale, Officer Tupper, J. C. Isbell, H. W. Lewis and Chester Phelps were the first to join. It was decided to limit the number to twenty-four.

MOTORMAN IS CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER FOLLOWING DEATH OF ACCIDENT VICTIM

Witnesses Divided as to Placing of the Blame; Reckless Driving on Part of Both Is Charged

A charge of manslaughter against Motorman W. P. Helms was phoned into the Los Angeles police office and to the Pacific Electric Company, Tuesday night, following the death of Mrs. J. E. Thompson, who was driving a Chevrolet sedan which collided with the Pacific Electric east-bound car, at five minutes of six o'clock. The accident happened at Fourth and Providencia avenue.

PatrolmenMarygold and Olchvary were first on the scene to give assistance.

Mrs. Thompson, a real estate dealer, living two miles north of Roscoe, was accompanied by her partner in the real estate business, Mrs. Murry of 11420 San Fernondo road. Mrs. Murry suffered a broken collarbone and torn ligaments. Dr. E. H. Thompsin was called and an ambulance carried her to the Burbank hospital. Mrs. Thompson was taken to the Fillbach mortician parlors by the Fillbach ambulance.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by a married son and a married daughter and a husband, who is a contractor near Roscoe. Mrs. Murry's husband and three children, a 16-year-old boy, a 14-year-old girl and a young 5-year-old daughter, and mother, Mrs. Walker, come immediately to the Burbank hospital as soon as notified.

Passengers on the car charge reckless driving of Mrs. J. E. Thompson. Mrs. George F. Dewey, 460 West Palm drive, Glendale, said, "The car was coming up the avenue at a terrific rate of speed. When she saw the car she turned, but not in time and not for enough, so she was carried at least a hundred feet by her own power. It was absolutely no fault of the motorman."

Feeling against the Pacific Electric is rather bitter because of several serious accidents recently. There is no speed limit and no signals. Some witnesses claimed that the street car was going fast, while passengers on the car declare it was the fault of the driver.

The sedan was completely demolished. The injuries of Mrs. Murry are not yet completely known. "We were waiting for mother, wondering why she did not come home to supper," said Mr. Murry, "when we began to worry, thinking that something had happened to her and just then the Burbank police officer came to the door and told us of the accident."

The motorman, W. P. Helms, became too ill to take the car on into Los Angeles, and he was put off at Glendale and the car, which was damaged, was laid off there. He lives at Riverside drive, in Ivanhoe, where four small boys and a wife waited for the father to come home, but he was unable to do so.

Wilcox, the conductor, lives at Edendale.

BEGIN PLANS FOR SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL

The Daily Vacation Bible school was the topic of consideration Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Sunday school board of the Methodist church. The Baptists, Presbyterians and Methodists are making plans for the summer school which is given free to the Burbank children.

The school is one that has been very popular with the Burbank youngsters. It is also something that the churches are very enthusiastic about. Initial plans were suggested some time ago, but all the details have not yet been completed.

MEETING KILLS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS PROJECT

By HARRY L. FRANTZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(United Press).—Relations between the American republics have not been substantially modified as a result of the fifth Pan-American conference which has just adjourned at Santiago in the opinion of observers here.

The proposal of Uruguay for an American League of Nations has gasped away its last breath. There will not be an American court of justice; there will not be compulsory arbitration between the American republics and for the present at least, there will be no agreement respecting armaments.

Incidentally, Uncle Sam, through his chief of delegation, Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher of Belgium, reiterated that the Monroe Doctrine is a matter of United States national policy and disapproved its incorporation in a Pan-American treaty as had been suggested.

However the results of the conference were not entirely negative. The conference adopted, subject to ratifications of the governments concerned, a convention providing for appointment of commission of inquiry before resort to arms in international disputes where national honor is not involved. This convention, resulting from the proposal of Dr. Manuel Gondra of Paraguay, was originally inspired by suggestion made by William Jennings Bryan while secretary of state.

The conference also approved a plan for reorganization of the Pan-American Union, which is composed of the twenty-one American republics and has headquarters in Washington. The union will have increased functions. Provision is made for representation on the governing board of the union of countries which may not be recognized by the United States. The board previously consisted only of accredited diplomatic representatives here, consequently Mexico had no representation although she continued as member of the union and paid annually a large sum toward its maintenance. The governing board heretofore has been presided over by the United States secretary of state, but henceforth will choose its own president and vice president.

The conference took affirmative action on numerous commercial, educational and sanitary measures which will tend to facilitate commerce and promote friendly cultured relations between the various republics. The most important of these is the Pan-American trade-mark convention, which has been modified in manner which it is hoped may prove satisfactory to several governments which would not ratify the convention in its previous form.

Owing to the presence of Dr. George Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, as a conference delegate, an effective program for sanitary and medical cooperation was worked out, and there there will in the future be a special sanitary conference. A congress to consider eugenics also was agreed upon.

A congress to continue efforts to codify American international law will be held in Rio de Janeiro in 1925.

Proposals for uniform customs regulations were referred to forthcoming world customs conference at Geneva in October, and consideration of wireless communications also was postponed in view of world electrical communications conference to be held in Paris shortly.

The Santiago conference took steps to discourage use of narcotics and alcohol. An educational campaign against alcohol will be inaugurated and action was taken to discourage exportation of alcohol to prohibition countries.

The United States delegation pursued a non-aggressive policy through the conference avoiding any action which might arouse suspicion that the United States sought to dominate either the conference or American affairs generally.

STEEL SUPPLANTS FLINT IN GRINDING OF ROCKS

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, May 16.—Just as iron gave way to steel a decade ago, now flint bows to the superiority of this competitor and steps gracefully out.

Importation of flint pebbles from France and Denmark for use in industries dependent on fine grinding of rock, has practically been abandoned, due to the development of steel balls for this purpose, according to the Structural Materials Research Laboratory of Lewis Institute here. Some years ago there was a heavy demand for the flint stones, the bulk of which was obtained abroad.

These flint pebbles, according to the announcement, were used in the cement industry in the finer grinding operations, where limestone, shale and clay are reduced to fine powder. Preliminary crushing is done by a variety of methods, but the pulverizing was the work of the pebbles.

THE SELFISH PAY

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

Selfishness has long been inveighed against by moralists. Rightly they denounce it as a vice that makes for the unhappiness of others. In the light of modern scientific knowledge they would also be justified in condemning it because of the misery it brings to the selfish themselves.

Never do you find a selfish person who is really happy. Seldom do you see one who can boast of really excellent health.

Selfishness, in fact, may exert, and frequently does exert, a gravely adverse influence on the processes both of the body and of the mind. So true is this that in the case of certain maladies—the so-called functional nervous disorders—physicians nowadays recognize selfishness as among the commoner causes.

Again and again they find it necessary to say to patients, in effect:

"The ills of which you bitterly complain would no longer trouble you if you would only learn to think less of your own comfort and to do more for the good of other people.

"Actually your disease is rooted in selfishness, and there is little that can be done for you until you acquire in larger measure the virtue of altruism, with its generous, expansive, self-forgetting sentiments. That is the best medicine we can prescribe for you."

Nor, after all, is it surprising that selfishness should act as a direct, provoking cause of nervous troubles.

Of necessity the selfish, because they are selfish, are perturbed when any of the little ordinary mishaps of existence—occasional sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia, etc.—befall them. They pay undue attention to these, thereby both exaggerating and helping to perpetute them.

So that all unconsciously they drift into a condition of nervous invalidism or semi-invalidism, from which they would have been exempt but for their unfortunate habit of thinking too much about themselves.

Indirectly, also, selfishness contributes to the production of ill-health.

Unless exceptionally thick-skinned, the selfish cannot help being conscious of the unpopularity their selfishness gains for them. Besides which, consciously or subconsciously, they are in some degree tormented by realization that they are thwarting and repressing social impulses which should find expression in action for the common good. Hence results an uneasiness—sometimes a bitterness of mind—that reacts unfavorably on the whole organism.

Selfishness, in a word, devitalizes. It may so devitalize as greatly to increase susceptibility to the contracting of disease, and to increase also the liability to succumb to any disease that may be contracted.

Whereas the unselfish, on the opposite, by the very fact of their unselfishness, may have their natural resistivity to disease greatly augmented. In part at least this explains the curious immunity which physicians and nurses so conspicuously possess even when infectious diseases are epidemic.

If only in the interest of physical health, accordingly, one's prayer should be, "Save me from selfishness." Of all personal shortcomings few are so dangerous, few so costly.

MY LITTLE NIECE CAME IN, EATING A SANDWICH, AND ASKED:— UNCLE DIPPY, WHAT ARE THESE LITTLE FISH?"
"THOSE ARE SARDINES," SAID I. "THEY TASTE GOOD!"
"YES" SAID I. "EVERYBODY LIKES SARDINES, WHY THE POOR LITTLE THINGS ARE OFTEN EATEN BY THE LARGER FISH!"
"AW, YOU CAN'T MAKE ME BELIEVE THAT!"
"IT'S TRUE," SAID I. "WHY DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT?"
"COZ HOW DO THE BIG FISH GET THE CANS OPEN?"

Curing your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

"Dear Mr. Barnes:

I spent some time down south this winter playing over a course that had sand putting greens, where I found a run-up approach shot worked very much better as a rule than a pitch. I developed this shot pretty well, and am now wondering whether I ought to stick to it on my home course, or whether I will find it is better to turn to the pitch approach instead. What do you think would be advisable for me?

R. P."

Answer:

My advice to you is to stick to the run-up shot where there isn't anything such as a bunker, ditch or other hazard to interfere with it. For short approaches, the average golfer will find it much easier to run the ball up than to pitch it. And in playing such shots, I recommend a club with a rather straight face. The more loft a club has, the more room there is for trouble in gauging the amount of force needed in hitting the ball and in hitting it.

Of course, there is a trip or hazard to be carried, you can't run up. Also where the ground is wet and heavy a run up is more uncertain, and at the same time this condition of the ground makes it easier to pitch the ball and make it stop. Under these conditions the pitch is the proper method.

But on most holes of the average course, the run-up is a mighty valuable shot to have in your bag. Furthermore you are more likely to strike conditions where the ground is dried out and hard, than where it is wet and soggy. So I would recommend that by all means you keep your short run-up working.

BARNUM BUILDING FINE HOME IN SPARR HEIGHTS

Structure Will Embody Semi-Spanish Style, Forming Land Mark from Hill-top Location

One of the finest homes in the southland, in one of the choicest districts the southland has to offer, will be found in Sparr Heights, when construction is completed on the new residence of H. E. Barnum, of the Barnum-Walters company, subdividers of Sparr Heights.

Of an artistic, semi-Spanish architecture, the Barnum residence will in time form a land mark, due partly to the fact that it is located on the brow of the hill, which overlooks the surrounding territory within a radius of more than a score of miles, and also due to the size and exceptional character of the structure that is planned.

In referring to the structure, which is already beginning to loom in promising proportions, Mr. Barnum explained that is really to be his home. "I have been in California for four years," he said, "But I have failed to find any place that has appealed to me so much as a home location, as did this spot in Sparr Heights, and my wife, who had thought of finding a place for our home in Hollywood or Los Angeles, tells me that she is entirely satisfied with the spot we have chosen."

A living room of generous proportions will occupy the southwest section of the house, with French windows opening out over an inspiring prospect of hills, valley and trees and directly overlooking shaded paths that lead down to the road below. Back of the living room is to be the sun parlor, leading out onto the patio, which in turn will lead to the walks and arbor skirting the edge of the elevation upon which the house stands. Living room, dining room and sun parlor will be finished in mahogany and the remainder of the rooms in white.

The southeast corner of the house will form the dining room with the kitchen and breakfast nook adjoining. French windows in the breakfast nook will admit the morning sunshine. Three bed rooms, with private baths, will occupy the remaining floor space.

Due to the contour of the hill where the house is being built, a splendid basement is possible, with an entrance facing the edge of the hill. A splendidly equipped gymnasium will occupy a part of this space, and a billiard hall, the other.

At the rear of the house, a four-car garage is under construction with living quarters above. Beyond the garage, a delightful out-door swimming pool will be located, and space will also be available for tennis courts and other outdoor sports.

The road which will skirt the hills at an elevation which will afford a splendid view, is now under construction. This road, it is planned, will wind in and out among some of the choicest homes to be found in California, a number of the sites offered having already been chosen by prominent citizens of Glendale, Hollywood and nearby cities.

THE SLIPPERY BILL

Oh, little Bill, so rich, so green,
So pleasing to the spendthrift eye
A moment by me thou art seen
And then you flit so quickly by.

Oh, little Bill, an X or V,
How hard you come, how short your stay,
A moment lingering with me
And then upon your merry way.

Oh, little Bill, so crisp and rare,
You get away from me somehow,
And melt like snowflakes in the air,
I wonder where you may be now.

Oh, little Bill, I held you fast,
And said a long time you should stay,
But your rich greenness did not last,
And you went on your spendthrift way

Oh, little Bill, so snug and tight
Within my purse when forth I fare
At dewy morn, but when at night
I look you are no longer there.

Oh, little Bill, I wish they'd smear
With lasting glue one side of thee,
That you might linger longer here,
That somehow you might stick to me.

WATCHMEN LEAD EXCITING LIVES

[By Associated Press]

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 16.—The life of a night watchman is not one of little excitement as most persons imagine, according to George E. Houghton, 62, who for thirty-three years has patrolled a block on Main street here. Several men serving time in the Utah state prison were captured through Houghton's efforts and although the veteran watchman has never been wounded by a criminal he has been fired upon several times.

Since becoming a night watchman in the early '90s Houghton has not had a vacation but he plans an automobile trip to the Pacific coast this summer.

HENS FED VITAMINES

BERKELEY, Cal.—Yeast feeding for hens to increase egg production is the latest experiment to be tried at the University of California farm at Davis, California. Comparative health, gains, mortality and egg production progress data is being compiled.

UNION PRINTERS' NEW HOSPITAL FOR MEMBERS

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 16.—Plans for the erection of a new hospital building to make room for printers suffering from incurable ailments will be approved at a meeting of the finance committee of the Union Printers' Home here, May 18.

The present hospital building of the institution will be removed from its present location, adjoining the main building of the home and a new hospital, similar in architectural style to the home will be erected in its place, according to the present plan. The old building which is constructed of round unhewn stone, will be removed to a site nearby and will be used to house incurable patients.

The understaking will represent an expenditure of $150,000, according to estimates. It will enable the home to care for victims of many diseases now barred because of a lack of facilities for treatment. Locomotor ataxia sufferers, cancer and diabetes patients are among those classed as incurable.

For many years agitation has been rife in the International Typographical Union for some provision in the home for incurables. Officials of the union, conceding the need of such a hospital, waited only until funds of the home would make its construction feasible.

CARDS SIX TIMES SWIMMING CHAMPS

[By Associated Press]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal.—For the sixth time in four years a Stanford diver, coached by Ernest Brandsten, Stanford swimming instructor, has won a championship of national rating or better. The recent victory of Al White over the entire field in the senior national fancy diving championships at Cleveland practically assures Stanford of a seventh honor in this event for White is only a junior in college.

In 1920 Clarence Pinkston of Stanford won the world's diving championship at the Olympic Games. Later he won the national A. A. U. title, and the following year, after a number of minor achievements in the water, was able to retain his national title, now held by White.

In 1922 Al White first came into prominence when he defeated Pinkston in the national finals in fancy diving and won the outdoor tank diving championship at the same time.

Other prominent aquatic stars coached by Brandsten are Norman Ross and Louis Balbach.

BANKS SUED IN DIVORCE ACTION

[By Associated Press]

BUTTE, Mont. — Two banks of Butte have been named as co-defendants in a divorce action. Mrs. Florence M. Martin recently sued for separation from her husband and named the two financial institutions because, she alleges, her husband deposited in them money belonging to her, and she wants the separation decree to provide a judicial mandate that they pay her the money.
